

MURDERED HIS WIFE.

Romano, It Is Said, Wanted to Get Rid of Her.

Shot Her After a Quarrel in a Mott Street Tenement.

He Then Walked Coolly Away After Greeting a Policeman.

Annie Romano, a pretty, Italian woman, twenty years old, was shot by her husband, Pietro, early this morning, and died a few hours later in St. Vincent's Hospital.

Romano escaped, but the police are confident they will soon have him in custody.

The murder took place right under the walls of Police Headquarters, in the big tenement-house, 200 Mott street, which is next door to Headquarters.

After he had shot his wife Pietro left the house, and when he met a policeman, half a block away, he calmly bid him good morning and walked away. At the same moment half a hundred people or more, who had heard the shot, were hastily leaving their beds to see who had been hurt.

Michael Mauro, who is an intimate friend of Pietro, says the man shot his wife because he was infatuated with a woman, with whom he desired to return to Italy, and his own wife was in the way.

Pietro is a street-sweeper. He and his wife lived in three small rooms on the third floor of the crowded Mott street tenement. He is twenty-nine years old, and married this wife eight years ago, when she was only twelve years old.

It is couple went to live in a tenement-house in Mulberry street. A year ago they moved into the Mott street home. Their life was a happy one until a few months ago. Then the people in the house saw that the two began to disagree. They couldn't understand it at all, but Michael Mauro says that it was caused by the other woman.

Pietro's work kept him out at night, and his wife, who was of nervous disposition, always had some one of her neighbors sleep in one of her rooms until her husband would return at a clock A. M. Last night, Nicholas Caperna, Pietro's ten-year-old nephew, was her companion.

Pietro told his wife he would not work at night last night, but would leave early and visit his cousin, Pietro, who, of 26 Prince street. He said if he was not home by 4 o'clock that she should go after him.

When the hour arrived and Pietro did not return his wife, as usual, went to the cousin's house. Not finding her husband there, she returned to Mott street and met him at the door.

Pietro had returned during his wife's absence, and pounced on the door, but could not awaken the sleeping boy. He was very angry, and he and his wife exchanged words. Mrs. Romano went through the rooms next to her own, climbed on the fire-escape to her apartment, unlocked the door and went out. As he entered she saw that he had a revolver in his hand, and suspecting his purpose, Pietro fired a shot and started to run into an adjoining room.

At the sound of the shot the boy awoke, and rushed to his mother's side. He saw his father standing down the stairs and out into the street. Pietro followed the boy out, and walked slowly towards Mulberry street, through Houston street.

Before he got to Mulberry street he passed Policeman John Muller. The two knew each other by sight, and the Italian touched his cap as he said: "How are you, John?" All right, answered the policeman as he walked on.

At the corner of the street half a dozen Italians were talking in an excited manner. One of them told Muller a woman had been shot, and they all looked toward Pietro, who was disappearing in the darkness towards Broadway. The policeman ran after him, but he had disappeared.

The police, however, were confident they would soon have him in custody. The murder took place right under the walls of Police Headquarters, in the big tenement-house, 200 Mott street, which is next door to Headquarters.

After he had shot his wife Pietro left the house, and when he met a policeman, half a block away, he calmly bid him good morning and walked away. At the same moment half a hundred people or more, who had heard the shot, were hastily leaving their beds to see who had been hurt.

Michael Mauro, who is an intimate friend of Pietro, says the man shot his wife because he was infatuated with a woman, with whom he desired to return to Italy, and his own wife was in the way.

Pietro is a street-sweeper. He and his wife lived in three small rooms on the third floor of the crowded Mott street tenement. He is twenty-nine years old, and married this wife eight years ago, when she was only twelve years old.

It is couple went to live in a tenement-house in Mulberry street. A year ago they moved into the Mott street home. Their life was a happy one until a few months ago. Then the people in the house saw that the two began to disagree. They couldn't understand it at all, but Michael Mauro says that it was caused by the other woman.

Pietro's work kept him out at night, and his wife, who was of nervous disposition, always had some one of her neighbors sleep in one of her rooms until her husband would return at a clock A. M. Last night, Nicholas Caperna, Pietro's ten-year-old nephew, was her companion.

Pietro told his wife he would not work at night last night, but would leave early and visit his cousin, Pietro, who, of 26 Prince street. He said if he was not home by 4 o'clock that she should go after him.

When the hour arrived and Pietro did not return his wife, as usual, went to the cousin's house. Not finding her husband there, she returned to Mott street and met him at the door.

Pietro had returned during his wife's absence, and pounced on the door, but could not awaken the sleeping boy. He was very angry, and he and his wife exchanged words. Mrs. Romano went through the rooms next to her own, climbed on the fire-escape to her apartment, unlocked the door and went out. As he entered she saw that he had a revolver in his hand, and suspecting his purpose, Pietro fired a shot and started to run into an adjoining room.

At the sound of the shot the boy awoke, and rushed to his mother's side. He saw his father standing down the stairs and out into the street. Pietro followed the boy out, and walked slowly towards Mulberry street, through Houston street.

Before he got to Mulberry street he passed Policeman John Muller. The two knew each other by sight, and the Italian touched his cap as he said: "How are you, John?" All right, answered the policeman as he walked on.

At the corner of the street half a dozen Italians were talking in an excited manner. One of them told Muller a woman had been shot, and they all looked toward Pietro, who was disappearing in the darkness towards Broadway. The policeman ran after him, but he had disappeared.

The police, however, were confident they would soon have him in custody. The murder took place right under the walls of Police Headquarters, in the big tenement-house, 200 Mott street, which is next door to Headquarters.

After he had shot his wife Pietro left the house, and when he met a policeman, half a block away, he calmly bid him good morning and walked away. At the same moment half a hundred people or more, who had heard the shot, were hastily leaving their beds to see who had been hurt.

Michael Mauro, who is an intimate friend of Pietro, says the man shot his wife because he was infatuated with a woman, with whom he desired to return to Italy, and his own wife was in the way.

Pietro is a street-sweeper. He and his wife lived in three small rooms on the third floor of the crowded Mott street tenement. He is twenty-nine years old, and married this wife eight years ago, when she was only twelve years old.

It is couple went to live in a tenement-house in Mulberry street. A year ago they moved into the Mott street home. Their life was a happy one until a few months ago. Then the people in the house saw that the two began to disagree. They couldn't understand it at all, but Michael Mauro says that it was caused by the other woman.

Pietro's work kept him out at night, and his wife, who was of nervous disposition, always had some one of her neighbors sleep in one of her rooms until her husband would return at a clock A. M. Last night, Nicholas Caperna, Pietro's ten-year-old nephew, was her companion.

EXAMINED BY PROXY.

Mandel Not Held for Answering for His Brother-in-Law.

The impersonation of a candidate at a civil-service examination is, under the present law, it seems, not a criminal offense.

Acting Postmaster Swift and Post-Office Inspector Beaver were of the opinion that it was, and were ready some three weeks ago to arrest Edward Mandel, a lawyer, of 545 Broadway street, and also a teacher in Grammar School 25, on charges of impersonating and conspiring to impersonate Louis Simon, formerly a letter-carrier at Postal Station A, at a civil-service examination.

Simon was discharged for incompetency several weeks ago, and soon after Acting Postmaster Swift was informed that some one, not Simon, had impersonated him when he passed the civil-service examination. Simon is a brother-in-law of the Mandels. He blamed them for his dismissal, and made two affidavits, implicating the Mandels, especially Edward Mandel, who he accuses took the examination when Simon was appointed a carrier June 1.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

The affidavits and other evidence were turned before United States District Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and there was no complaint for conspiracy under section 544 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. Mr. Swift today, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service law, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. All he could do was to bring the matter before the Civil-Service Examiners and urge them to have their laws so changed as to stop such frauds.

BYRNES SAYS IT'S O.K.

Dr. Parkhurst Has a Perfect Right to Criticize His Official Acts.

So Has Any Citizen, and He Wants No Controversy.

The Reverend Reformer Adds to His Remarks of Last Night.

"Yes, I read in the morning papers what the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst said about me at the Eighteenth Street Methodist Church meeting last night," said Supt. Byrnes, with a bland smile, when an "Evening World" reporter "tackled" him this morning.

Dr. Parkhurst has a perfect right, like any other citizen, to criticize any of my acts as a public official—any reports I may make in the discharge of my duty—and I do not care to enter into any controversy."

That is all the chief of New York's police would say in reply to Dr. Parkhurst's strictures. The doctor had said to an immense mass-meeting at Dr. Wilson's church:

"It is time to say something about Byrnes. He is the executive head of the Police Department. We are favored with homilies from Mulberry street as to how the social evil should be handled, and stating that it exists and must continue. What has Supt. Byrnes to do with that? If the city wants philosophy, we will hire a philosopher. If we want preaching, we'll hire a chaplain to the Police Department."

It is said that if disorderly houses are suppressed, their inmates will invade the tenements. Suppose they do? The matter is one of legislation. Mr. Byrnes and his followers are here to execute the laws."

Dr. Parkhurst said Supt. Byrnes's report of Sept. 7 was the most remarkable document he ever read, and commenting on the statement of the report that there had been 99,000 excessive violations, declared that if Byrnes issued the order in earnest every saloon would have been closed up tight the next Sunday.

Supt. Byrnes declined to answer these propositions. Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house: "Of course, I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the real executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without carrying the evils and abuses complained of, or at least pacing himself on record. That is all I care to add to my remarks of last night."

MEN'S SUITS.

What will you wear? Single Breasted, Double Breasted or the 3-Button Cut-away Frock Suit? We have them in all medium and extreme styles, made of Cheviots, Cassimeres, Diagonals and Worsteds.

Prices $12, $14, $15, $18 to $28.

VOGEL BROTHERS
(Clothing, Hats, Shoes and Furnishings),
8th Ave., Cor. 42d St.

A full assortment of men's suits in all the newest styles. (Our own make. Special $1.50.)

OPEN EVENINGS.
Write for Our New Catalogue.

Only such styles in our $3.00 suits as another Italian are showing for $5.00.

LONDON & LIVERPOOL
86 and 88 BOWERY,
COR. HESTER ST.

PIONEERS OF
GOOD GOODS
AT
LOW PRICES.

LATEST NOVELTIES
IN
CLOTHING,
GENTS' FURNISHINGS,
HATS AND SHOES.

OPEN EVENINGS.

HOTELS.
New York Hotel, B'way, opp. Bond; table d'hôte, including wine, 50c.; 120 desirable rooms; rates moderate.

old rate of $5 a month, regardless of whether court suit or not. As some courts only suit four or five days a month, at this rate the pay would be merely nominal.

The appropriation for the pay of the deputies and bailiffs at the old rates has been signed by the President, but the Commander of the Treasury is the stumbling block in the way.

Congressman "Tim" Campbell has been almost a daily visitor to the United States Marshal's office, supposedly to press the claims of some of his constituents for a Federal position.

Chief Deputy United States Marshal Kennedy this morning acknowledged that a number of changes would be made in the list of deputies and bailiffs on Oct. 1, but he declined to give their number or names.

Spare Pearline
Spoil the Wash

SOL. HEYMAN & CO.,
GREATEST CASH OR CREDIT
HOUSE IN THIS CITY.

NEW FALL STOCK NOW READY.
SIX FLOORS OF FINE, MEDIUM AND PLAIN
FURNITURE AND CARPETINGS

ALL IN ONE LARGE BUILDING.
HOUSES, FLATS AND APARTMENTS
FURNISHED COMPLETE, ONE DAY'S NOTICE.

Carpeting made, laid, lined, free of charge this week.
PARLOR, CHAMBER, DINING-ROOM FURNITURE A SPECIALTY, LARGEST ASSORTMENT, lowest prices, satisfaction guaranteed.

IN WILTON, RIGGS, TAPESTRY, OR EMPIRE CORDUROY, FOR $5.25 $5.25

OR IN CRETONS $8.52.
ANY ONE WORTH DOUBLE.